The Rudy harrow was specially designed for arenas with temperamental felt footing additives or custom sand.

The Rudy harrow coil tines "tickle" the footing surface and provide the gentle harrowing required of some felt footing additives and custom sand.

The leveling bar works behind the tines to smooth and prepare the surface, providing a balanced surface before the screen roller does its work. The leveling bar can be adjusted at six different height levels.

The adjustable screen roller provides leveling support for the harrow, desired compaction rates, and helps avoid scalping the surface. Screen roller bearings have greasable zerks for proper maintenance.

The swivel hitch allows a smooth turning radius for the greatest possible access and coverage. The swivel hitch also provides a highly satisfactory relationship between the tractor and harrow by reducing negative friction on the tractor while turning. The swivel is equipped with a lock bar, which allows the operator to travel from one arena to another without uncomfortable fishtailing.
